Paramedics at Fire Stations

Paramedics employed by Medevac, Inc., the San Mateo County-contracted ambulance company, will be based in fire stations in Brisbane, Pacifica and Daly City, following action by councils in those three cities Monday.

Daly City's decision to let Medevac operate there came in a split 3-2 vote after more than 2½ hours of sometimes heated discussion on the issue.

Kevin McDonald, owner of Mercy-Peninsula Ambulance Co., one of the companies that now provides non-paramedical ambulance service to the county, promptly threatened to file a lawsuit against the county and some cities for allowing Medevac to use public facilities to base its ambulances.

McDonald said, "I have to pay taxes, and so should they (Medevac)."

Arrangements were made by Medevac — owned by Joe Dolphin of Los Angeles — to pay rents ranging from $125 to $250 per month for space inside fire stations.

Medevac personnel will participate in fire training programs and will also assist in routine station maintenance in the North County. Dolphin told the Daly City Council.

At each of these locations, fire station captains will have control over the Medevac units, it was explained.

Dave Thoen, county health department official in charge of the paramedic program here, told this newspaper that the cities involved in the program "will have the best of all worlds."

They will have paramedics under their control for immediate response to the scene of emergencies. And the city will receive rental for the space occupied by the crew and ambulance, he said.

But McDonald sees the deal differently.

He argues that Medevac is a profit-making company and as such, should not be housed in a public facility.

Pacifica and Brisbane also voted unanimously to allow Medevac to operate in the cities.

Daly City councilman William Schumacher renewed his argument that the city should have its own paramedics.

At the very least, Medevac should not be housed in a fire station and should be made to find quarters elsewhere in the city, Schumacher said.

Councilman McRobert Stewart agreed.

Mayor Anthony Giammona saw the use of the fire stations to house Medevac differently.

The fact that Medevac would be immediately available for dispatch by local fire personnel to the scene of an emergency was a big plus, Giammona pointed out.

"I see these things as advantages . . . not disadvantages," Giammona said.

Supporting Giammona in his stand were Councilmen Victor Kyriakis and Al Teglia.

"I want them (Medevac) located in the best possible place for the city," Kyriakis said. "I'd rather not leave this (location of the paramedics) to chance."

More Trips Planned By Some Officials of S.M. County Officials

By FRANK LaPIERRE and RICK SULLIVAN

No sooner have some San Mateo County officials returned from San Diego, where they attended a three-day convention of the League of California Cities, than they are planning a trip to Denver, Colo., to participate in the National League of Cities conference.

And while these officials, are attending this conference in the "mile-high city," plans will be finalized for yet another meeting — that one in Carmel — hosted by the North San Mateo County Council of Cities.

Site of the Carmel meeting will be the plush Quail Lodge at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, according to Daly City Councilman Albert Teglia.

Although the Council of Cities approved the site for its spring convention, none of the 10 member cities from the northern half of the county have signed up to go as yet.

Cost of this trip, to be paid for by taxpayers, is $65 for one night's lodging (single), registration fees, breakfast and dinner.

Cocktails are expected to be no-host affairs at the Feb. 19-20, 1977 session.

Officials taking spouses must pay the difference in room lodging — about $25, Teglia said.

The councilman, a former Jefferson Union High School District trustee, who has helped plan school board conventions in the past has been the principal planner for the Council of Cities conference.

At a council meeting last week Teglia suggested that the Quail Lodge would be an appropriate retreat for councilmen to relax and to discuss city business with their managers and staff.

Teglia's proposal met with some opposition from Burlingame Councilman Irv Amstrup, who argued that such a conference should be held in this county.

Amstrup, a member of the San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau, suggested that money spent on the meeting should benefit businessmen in this county, not those in Carmel.

"The meeting could just as easily be held in Half Moon Bay," said Amstrup.

By a near unanimous vote, the council supported Teglia's proposal.

The Carmel conference will begin with registration at noon Saturday (Feb. 19) followed by the "program" at 2:15 p.m. cocktails and a dinner speaker at 6:30 p.m.

Sunday's sessions will start at 9 a.m. with breakfast, followed by a two hour "program" and adjournment at 12:30 p.m.

Teglia said no speakers or programs have been put together yet.

Meanwhile, records indicate that the Denver conference will attract 11 of the same city officials who attended the Cali-

DC Rec Worker Stabbed

A Daly City Recreation Department employee was stabbed twice in the abdomen when he tried to break up a fight between two young girls at a city park Monday afternoon.

William M. Zachary, 22, a recreation leader at Westmoor Park for the past two years, was stabbed in the abdomen during a scuffle with five male youths.

Zachary heard a commotion behind the clubhouse about 3:30 p.m. and went to investigate.

He saw two young Filipino girls fighting and tried to intercede.

About this time, four or five Filipino male juveniles jumped him and he tried to get away, police said.

Det. Les Bastedo said during Zachary's attempt to escape the gang, he was stabbed twice.

The victim was reported in stable condition today following surgery at Mary's Help Hospital, Bastedo said.

The recreation leader is well liked by the "regular kids who use the park," according to Charles Vincent, head of the city's Recreation Dept.

"Everyone here is taking this pretty hard. We don't know what we can do about these things," Vincent said.

The assailant is described as a thin Filipino male, 5'5" tall with medium length black hair parted in the middle, about 18 years old, wearing blue pants and a blue shirt.

Priest Succumbs

Monsignor Thomas J. Farrell, pastor of Holy Angels Church in Colma since 1954, died Monday, just a few months after attaining his Monsignor status. He was 75.

Monsignor Farrell, who is remembered by friends mostly for his kindness and his devotion to the Church, was a native of County Tipperary, Ireland, and had served at parishes in Oakland, Alameda and Larkspur before coming to Holy Angels, the oldest parish in this area.

His body will lie in state beginning at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the church, 107 San Pedro Road. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the church. A Concelebrated Mass will be offered at

DC Annexation Bid Rejected by LAFCO

Daly City's effort to annex the 130-acre unincorporated Colma area east of Junipero Serra Freeway was rejected Monday by a 2 to 2 deadlock of the San Mateo County Local Agency Formation Commission.

With commissioners tied both for and against the annexation proposal, the matter is dormant for at least one year unless the commission waives that restriction, a situation which could well occur with a fifth member present.

Commissioners William H. Royer and John J. Murray opposed proceeding with the annexation proposal, mainly on the basis of the outcome of the Nov. 2 election in which voters of the Broadmoor Police Protection District, which serves the area, voted a tax increase for the district by a vote of nearly 4 to 1.

Commissioners John Lindley and A.C. "Bud" Harrison favored continuing with the annexation matter, leaving the decision up to the County Board of Supervisors as to whether there would be an annexation election.

Commission Chair-

woman Jean Fassler disqualified herself at the start of the meeting because she hadn't heard the start of the public hearing at the board's Sept. 29 meeting and hadn't listened to the tape recording of the session. Her alternate member, John Ward, who did attend the earlier session, was not present to participate in Monday's hearing, because he was attending a meeting of the Coastal Zone Conservation Commission.

The hearing was continued until after the Nov. 2 election at the suggestion of Royer in order to learn the outcome of the tax rate proposal.

Murray said he would have voted for the annexation to Daly City, but the outcome of the tax vote "swayed my opinion."

"When people vote to tax themselves, they express themselves very strongly," Murray said. "I feel at this time that the commission would err to call for a (annexation) vote. I feel the people have spoken."

Murray strongly suggested that the area seek annexation to the town of Colma, stating that despite the tax election outcome

Planner in SSF Protests Planned Power Plant Site

By JANET PARKER

South San Francisco's city planner is sharply protesting a plan by Pacific Gas & Electric to locate a combined cycle electric power plant near Oyster Point Marina.

Planner Bill Costanzo said a power plant on land fill at the end of Oyster Point Boulevard would have severe impacts, not only on the marina but on locations throughout the city.

He said he will protest location of the plant at the proposed South San Francisco site at a public hearing set at San Mateo City Hall on Dec. 2.

In the meantime, he believes the city should hire a consultant to aid him in reviewing the PG&E proposal. Costanzo presently is the entire city planning staff.

"This thing would have a profound effect on major developments in the city," Costanzo said.

"I think that the total economic impact of this plant far overshadows its benefits," he said.

PG&E is studying the possibility of building the $158 million plant at one of four sites — Oyster Point, Visitation Point in Brisbane, the Potrero plant site in San Francisco and a site in North San Jose.

The power company has filed a notice with the state Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission announcing its intention to obtain permits to build the plant on one of the four proposed sites after hearings are held in each of the three counties involved.

The plant — which is planned for completion by 1980 — would include gas and steam turbines, two oil storage tanks, three office and warehouse buildings, a cooling tower and a large switchyard, Costanzo said.

He also said he objects because the city has not had enough time to study the proposal and he plans to point that out at the hearing.

Notices by PG&E and the state commission indicate the local cities must form their opinions immediately, he said.

Other hearings are scheduled Nov. 22 in San Francisco and Dec. 3 in San Jose.

Additional hearings may be scheduled, a state commission spokesman said.

The state commission will conduct the informational hearings and anyone may testify.

Costanzo said that an official of the state commission said the state probably will pay the costs of local planning departments for studying this proposal — including any special consultant fees. In a report to the Planning Commission, Costanzo cites 14 different reasons why the plant shouldn't be built in the city.

In particular, he pointed out that the visual impact from several locations in

Judge Orders Another Stay of Order

Ottoboni May Escape a Jail Term

Former Colma Police Chief Raymond John Ottoboni may not be going to jail.

His attorney, Zerme P. Haning, won another order from Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo Friday staying a 90-day jail term until at least Dec. 3. And the judge indicated that he may not sentence Ottoboni to jail at all. The term was to begin Friday night.

Haning, a veteran defense attorney from San Carlos, argued that a jail sentence is not warranted for these reasons:

- Ottoboni's father, Colma Town Councilman Raymond D. Ottoboni, 72, was expected to be released from a hospital late Friday after heart surgery. Confined to bed, he needs the help of his son.
- The former chief's mother, Mae Ottoboni, 70, is expected to soon enter a hospital for similar heart surgery.
- Ottoboni himself, a psychiatrist testified Friday, suffers from an ulcer and stomach ailments and severe cases of mental depression and anxiety. A 90-day jail term, testified Dr. Allan Levy of San Mateo, could result in Ottoboni's own hospitalization.
- The younger Ottoboni, an only child, is needed to care for his ailing parents.

While insisting that Ottoboni must be punished, Judge Piombo indicated that he will modify the sentence to require that Ottoboni work for a non-profit or public organizations for four consecutive months, five-days-per-week.

The judge took a final determination under advisement until Dec. 3 to allow for Ottoboni to care for his ailing father. On that day, the attorneys and Ottoboni are to appear before Piombo again so that the judge can make the specific work service order. Piombo instructed probation officer Paul A. Diaterheft to find a program in which Ottoboni must perform "real work" that will benefit a community or private agency. If he cannot, then the judge may sentence Ottoboni to jail.

Ottoboni, the 34-year-old former Colma mayor and police chief, was named along with his parents in a multi-count election fraud charge earlier this year involving attempts to falsely register persons in Colma to vote for the younger Ottoboni in his bid to regain a council position last March.

Charges against the mother where dismissed after the son pleaded guilty felonies and the father of misdemeanors.

Judge Piombo months ago sentenced the younger Ottoboni to 90 days in county jail but stayed the term to give time for Ottoboni to recover from what doctors called severe psychiatric problems.

On Friday, Dr. Levy testified that Ottoboni has not made much progress and has become thwarted because of the anxiety related to the condition of his parents.

"Ray is ill-prepared to deal with the loss of either of his parents either now or in the future," Dr. Levy responded to a question posed by Haning. "I can see the tornado on the horizon."

The psychiatrist said that Ottoboni sees a need for professional help and has been seeking it.

Prosecutor Stanley Poling established through Levy that Ottoboni could be expected to survive in jail only if heavily drugged.

Dr. Levy said that a jail term for 90 days would providing its own paramedic program, similar to South San Francisco's, was received coolly by Teglia, Kyriakis and Giammona.

"I would not oppose the city looking at its own paramedic program. I would encourage it," Kyriakis said.

Giammona reluctantly agreed it was all right to look. "But I can't see going into the paramedic program — it's just too costly."

The contract to the county is a lucrative one, McDonald told the council.

It translates to about $1.6 million annually to Medevac, according to McDonald.

Dolphin did not argue with this estimate.

Medevac expects to begin operation in the county on Dec. 1, with paramedics assigned to its ambulances.

However, because the countywide communications network linking the ambulances with each other a base hospital and the county has not been installed as yet, medication cannot be administered by paramedics en route to a receiving hospital.

The communications equipment was expected to soon be installed, it was learned.

The ambulances will take a patient to the nearest hospital in critical cases.

In Daly City, as an example, Mary's Help Hospital or Kaiser Permanente in South San Francisco may be the closest, even though the company's "base station" was at Stanford or Peninsula hospital, Dolphin said.

"the area cannot stay forever unincorporated."

Royer questioned the necessity of proceeding with the annexation matter.

"The vote taken the other day was a good indication of what the people want," he stated.

Royer, who is chairman of the Board of Supervisors, said he would have to vote against the annexation if the matter continued on to the board.

B. Sherman Coffman, executive director of LAFCO, disagreed with Royer, stating if the annexation matter went to the voters they would be "deciding in a different arena." He noted that in the area proposed for annexation there were only 309 votes in the tax election.

Wayne Johnson, a director of the Broadmoor Police Protection District, noted later, however, that the vote in the area was 164 in favor of the tax increase, with 71 opposed.

"I ask that the proceedings be stopped right now and save the county any other unnecessary additional expenses," Johnson stated.

When Mayor Fred Garbini of Colma appeared, he was asked by Murray if Colma would take the position of lead agency in seeking annexation of the area should it be asked by residents of the area.

Garbini replied that Colma would "accept them," but did not commit the council to taking a role as lead agency, although he said he would support that concept "individually." Theodore Kirschner, a commissioner of the Colma Fire Protection District, was more explicit. He stated that if the area residents were faced with the option of annexing to Daly City or Colma, 99 per cent would vote for Colma.

"We've seen too much up there," he stated, referring to Daly City.

Elio Fontana, owner of a monument business in Colma and owner of property in the unincorporated area, said he opposed annexation to Daly City and would "approach Colma and ask to annex."

Harrison, speaking in favor of approving the annexation, stated, "I don't know if we should judge. We should continue in the process in view of all the work and studies."

Murray replied that it would be "a waste of money to send it to the Board of Supervisors . . . when we see the indication by the (tax) vote. We should kill it right here."

Lindley noted that the proceedings can be terminated by the Board of Supervisors if there is a majority protest.

Jack Jorgenson.

Others planning the Denver trip who did not travel to San Diego include Redwood City Councilmen Robert Bury and Robert Norris and San Mateo Councilman John Condon.

The City of Millbrae, which has budgeted $2,160 for the Denver trip, has not yet signed anyone up to attend the event, according to the finance department. Millbrae sent 14 delegates to San Diego. Daly City sent a contingent of 21 persons to the LCC, but so far has not heard from any officials concerning the Denver meeting.

Only $665 — sufficient for one person to attend — has been budgeted by Daly City for the National League meeting this year.

Records indicate that Daly City has sent only one person to these national conventions in previous years.

Assistant City Manager Ray Letsinger said Daly City "just isn't into this (national league) meeting."

Daly City tends to place emphasis on local, county and state meetings, it is understood.

The Cities of Belmont, San Carlos, Half Moon Bay, Burlingame, San Bruno, South San Francisco and Pacifica have no funds budgeted for the Denver trip.

It was learned that registration fees alone for the Denver conference are $100 per delegate.

The South San Francisco Unified School District Board of Trustees gets its crack at collective bargaining Wednesday night.

The district is scheduled to present its package of proposals for the district's 500 teachers.

It's the third in a series of preliminary steps which, according to new state laws, must occur before public schools can begin negotiations.

A public hearing of the board's proposal will be held Nov. 24.

the city will be extremely undesirable. The plant will be clearly visible from Oyster Point Marina and yacht harbor, the proposed marina expansion including the restaurant, the Sierra Point Marina project in Brisbane and the "Bowl Area" on the easterly slope of San Bruno Mountain where Visitacion Associates plans to build an office complex.

Costanzo said he expects that during operation a steam plume will rise from the plant cooling towers and on windy days the Oyster Point marina will be fogged in by the steam mist from the towers.

Transmission lines will traverse either the industrial park or Sierra Point. "It will add to the present hodgepodge effect created by the older industrial land uses and will detract from the care taken in aesthetic consideration in the development of the new industrial park," Costanzo said.

Furthermore, he said the plant will generate a noise level of about 70 decibels — comparable to evening airport noise.

"You would know that plant is there all the time," he said. "You would be able to hear it." It would be particularly evident at night when street noises are reduced.

Costanzo also said that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District has ruled gas turbines are a "significant source" of air pollutants.

Property known as Belle Aire Island, near the airport off South Airport Boulevard, he said, would be more appropriate. He said the city probably could provide PG&E easements to cross city property onto that alternative parcel of land.

The proposed site, he said, interferes with a 1968 master plan approved by the city for a shoreline regional park.

have a 90 per cent chance of a breakdown by Ottoboni, requiring hospitalization.

Haning looked at it this way as well: "I don't want to punish his parents!"

At one point, the judge said, "What I'm more frightened of is that if he has a relapse in jail we have a problem from the county's viewpoint."

Dr. Levy said that Ottoboni has long suffered from mental problems of depression and anxiety, which caused stomach and ulcer problems.

The mental problems, said he, have costed Ottoboni "his marriage, his children, a lot of money, his job (as police chief) and his career (in law enforcement)."

The problems are of such magnitude at this point, the psychiatrist added, that Ottoboni is unemployable.

Street Lights Go On Again in Pacifica

By JANET PARKER

The first city in California and possibly the country to dim street lights to save money is now the first city to turn them back on again.

Determined Pacifica residents convinced the City Council Wednesday night to put 494 of the city's street lights back to use.

It was a joyful victory for the residents who for the second time crowded the council chamber and politely asked that their safety and well-being be the city's first priority.

City Manager Don Weidner said after the council's informal vote that Pacific Gas & Electric Co. will be ordered immediately to forget about the black-out and put the lights back into circulation.

The council voted 4-1. Stan Farber dissenting.

Since the council had planned to save $36,000 a year by turning out one-third of the street lights, it now must put that money back into the budget.

The lights have been out since June and Weidner said the PG&E bill for those lights for the remainder of the year will be from $20,000 to $25,000. He suggested the money be pulled from the city's $98,000 reserve fund.

Street lighting became an explosive issue last month when a resident, Ken Kirby, handed the council a petition signed by 3,000 residents.

They protested the council's street lighting cut-back, an action that was approved unanimously in June.

Community Services Director Les Clark had prepared a plan with priority lighting areas at intersections, crosswalks and sharp curves.

Clark sent letters to 12 homeowners groups warning them of the council's intentions. Five letters of protest were sent to the council by residents.

When the council carried out the black-out, PG&E officials said it was the first they had ever heard of any city turning out lights to save money.

But residents last month, led by Kirby, said the blackout has caused them great grief and anxiety. Kirby said residents on areas of streets that were darkened fear an increase in crime.

"The time is right now to turn those lights back on," Kirby said Wednesday night. The sun is setting earlier and the fog is drifting in, he said.

H.G. Tisdale of Bethany Baptist Church at 1443 Adobe Drive said the church area has been "hazardous and unsafe." He read a letter from the congregation saying that they fear their church will be the target of burglary and vandalism.

"It's disheartening to imagine this city would turn off the street light in front of our church, thereby leaving our church in darkness," Tisdale said.

Only one resident who spoke, Fred Howard, was obviously angry. Howard chided the council for spending $5,000 for its own "pet-peeve" — a beach-cleaning proposition on the Tuesday ballot — but denying residents their safety.

Howard said he had already spent $50 to install lighting on his own house in the absence of a street light.

Transportation and Safety Analyst Kevin Roberts said the city has saved $6,257 in PG&E bills since the lighting cutback was initiated.

He said it will cost more than $4,000 to get the lights back in operation. Some were simply turned off and others were removed entirely.

By the time the procedure is over the city will have a net gain of $935, PG&E District Manager Earl Aube said.

Roberts said his office has received about 250 complaints since the lights were dimmed.

Although residents had feared a crime wave as a result of darkened streets, Police Chief Mel Nelson reported to the contrary.

He said that in September and October, compared to the first eight months of the year, night residential and commercial burglaries have decreased slightly. Vehicle burglaries have remained even and malicious mischief has increased slightly, he said.

Night vehicle accidents increased by 14, which he said was not significant.

There were 13 incidents reported to police, he said, that residents blamed on the street light reduction. Police officers, he said, agreed the lack of lighting could be a cause in only one case.

Councilmen already had gotten a first hand look at the citizens complaints in individual night rides one week last month.

With little discussion, Councilman Sidney Lorvan moved to tell the staff to turn all the lights back on. He asked that PG&E try to cancel a 3-year contract one resident signed to have his street light turned back on.

Mayor Janice Fulford said she wanted it clearly understood the street lighting cutback was not her idea. She originally had proposed that the city turn lights on an hour later and off an hour earlier in the morning but that cost-saving was impossible, because street lights work on a light-sensor method.

Councilman Mark Savage praised the methods used by Kirby and his followers, saying he didn't feel "pushed and shoved" into making a decision.

"I don't really feel the safety of the city is in peril as a result of turning out street lights," Savage said. "But I believe people feel afraid. And when people are afraid it is just as serious as if there were immediate danger," he said.

"I am deeply grateful to you for seeing fit to re-elect me as your Assemblyman. I assure you I will strive to justify your confidence in me and to honestly represent the interests of the 19th Assembly district."

Alcoholism Programs Set for Action Week

Samuel Chandler

A series of educational programs on the disease of alcoholism will be presented at Mary's Help Hospital during National Alcoholism Action Week, Nov. 14-20.

According to John Crowley, program coordinator for the Mary's Help CAREUNIT (Comprehensive Alcoholic Rehabilitation Environment Unit), the educational programs will be held Monday through Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. in the auditorium on the ground floor of the hospital. The programs are free to the public.

On Monday evening, the film "Chalktalk" will be shown followed by a question and answer session.

The film is narrated by the Rev. John Martin, one of America's best known alcoholism educators.

Tuesday, Don J. Froli, labor-management consultant for the National Council on Alcoholism in San Mateo County, will speak on "The Work of the National Council and the Employed Alcoholic."

On Nov. 17, the film "Guidelines" narrated by the Rev. John Martin will be shown. The last program of the week, on Nov. 18, a panel discussion on women and alcoholism will be held. Panelists will be Leona Kent, executive director of the Women's Rehabilitation Association, San Mateo, and Karen Geiger, formerly of the Smithers Alcoholism Foundation in New York.

For further information about the series of programs, call Mary's Help Hospital.

A picture shows six little men, leprechauns, marching over the pages of "Wilson Library Bulletin." The posters they hoist above their brows read, "Disney Commercializes," "The Brothers Grimm Romanticizes," "Washington Irving Politicizes," "Hans Christian Andersen Sentimentalizes," "C. S. Lewis Proselytizes," and "Tolkien Over-Fantasizes."

The six little men are used to illustrate the heat being generated in one of the newest crusades to hit our beat-up and whacked out country: Intellectual freedom for children.

"There are alarmists who see increasing freedom for children as one part of the growing chaos of our times," writes Peggy Sullivan, "and there are the other alarmists who see adults who limit such freedom as mindless, tyrannical ogres preventing the needed development of children."

WHEN IT COMES to the amount of intellectual freedom adults should give to their children, the question of TV programs, books and movies becomes important. Involved is the development of the child's self image.

Thus writes Donnarae Mac Cann, teacher and author, "Children do not have the secure sense of themselves that can withstand a kind of unorthodox viewpoint."

But a child's self image in terms of race or sex is not a matter of degree. It is a necessary part of a child's being and future development largely hinges upon it. In the long run society's future hinges upon it also.

Hence, Mac Cann warns that books and programs that made derogative statements about race, religion, gender and morals have great effect upon children. As proof, Mac Cann cites Ernest W. Chamber's experience with "Little Black Sambo."

"I wasn't born from the womb with the attitudes I have now... I set through 'Little Black Sambo.' And since I was the only black face in the room, I became Little Black Sambo." Thus the self image of the child suffered. Another example cited by Mac Cann pictures a male character saying, "A girl looks just as much like a monkey as I look like a girl." What about the self-image generated here for both boys and girls.

There are many psychologists, librarians and teachers who do not accept the "self image" theory and state that restrictions violate the "child's right to read." (or watch). "The fundamental question," they state, is, "Do we believe in democracy?" The kind of adults we produce may be dependent on our attitude to the children.

They state with professor Pamela Procnar that to develop adults who are capable of choice and decision-making "we must take the risk that exposure to ideas may lead people to choose undemocratic behavior, unless we wish ourselves to undo democracy itself."

THE QUESTION FOR Professor Procnar is, "Our children — do we trust them or do we not?"

Closely related to the issue is the child's right to free expression.

(Third and last in a series on Babe Herman, who, it turns out, wasn't nearly as dumb as the folklore makes him out to be — a fact investigated this week.)

The evidence doesn't support the myth that Babe Herman was a dumb baseball player. Contemporary writing of Herman's era more than once displays testimony by various baseball men that Herman was indeed a smart player, while others swear that Herman never once got cheated at the salary bargaining table. More subjectively, it is difficult to imagine a dunderhead continuing to work in the game for 18 years after his active playing days; 16 years as a scout for Pittsburgh, the Mets, Phillies, Giants, and the Yankees, and seasons as a coach for the Pirates and Seattle, in the PCL.

As for his fielding, Herman says, "I never got hit in the head with the ball. You know, that's silly. No, hell, if it had hit me in the head, I woulda quit."

HERE, TOO, Herman seemed to be a victim of circumstances. He had been a first baseman throughout his minor league career, and broke in with Brooklyn as a first-baseman. Later in his rookie season, he had been switched to the outfield to take advantage of his natural speed and excellent throwing arm.

When he hit .319 that season, he was chosen as the first baseman on the mythical major league all-star team for the year, beating out future Hall of Fame members George Sisler, Bill Terry and George Kelly. But everybody remembers the 35 games he played that year in the sunfield with no experience, which is when all of his outfielding problems occurred.

Babe was back at first base in 1927. By that time a fading Max Carey had joined the Dodgers, and he worked with Babe in the outfield, showing him how to handle the sun. Herman was back in the outfield for keeps in 1928, after a winter of chasing drives hit over his head off the fungo bat of Sloppy Thurston. Articles of the day describe Herman as a man who had gone from one of the worst outfielders in baseball to one of the best. If he did sometimes tagger awkwardly under fly balls, he always caught them. But those 35 games had already set Herman's defensive image.

"Later on, when I was coaching, I used to teach young players how to catch balls in the sun field, and there would always be some writer coming around saying, 'You teaching somebody how to play the outfield?' And they'd walk away laughing. Hell, I had a 10 point higher lifetime fielding average than Ty Cobb."

IT IS SUCH STATISTICS which Herman would now like writers to concentrate on when voting time for the old-timers' Hall of Fame entries comes around. Herman feels, as did Stengel, that he would have been in the Hall years ago but for another combination of poor timing and being a nice guy.

Herman had retired from the majors at the end of a run with Detroit in 1937, and played seven years of minor league ball, finally retiring for good in 1944 from the Hollywood Stars. He was living a comfortable California existence on a ranch he then had near Sunland, when a Dodger official visited and told him that Branch Rickey didn't have a very good club and that they weren't drawing too well, but that Branch thought that with the war-weakened competition and Babe coming back to help with the attendance and as a much needed left handed pinch-hitter, that Brooklyn might be able to stay in the race and have a respectable season all around.

Herman was 42, had finished his career playing with a steel brace on one knee, and hadn't seen a baseball since the previous September, but he returned to Brooklyn for the final two months of the season, and immediately fell into his old image problems.

Two days after his arrival, he was sent up to pinch-hit with the bases loaded for Tom Brown, a player who hadn't yet been born when Herman started with Brooklyn. The Dodgers were behind a run to the Cards. Herman hit the first pitch off the top of the wall, driving in two runs.

"I round first. Now, in those days you couldn't get new spikes because of the war, and I had an old pair that had hardly any cleat left in them. So I rounded first base and Durocher (first base coach) yells, 'Go, go.' And then the ball came right off the wall into Hopp's hand (Johnny Hopp, right fielder for St. Louis), and Durocher yelled, 'No, no.' And I tried to stop, and we'd had enough rain to make it a little slippery, so I had a heckuva time trying to get back.

Hopp threw to first, and of course I ended up diving and crawling back to the bag, muddy as hell. You know what? The next day the papers have big pictures of me looking ridiculous, and they're saying, 'Well, it's the same old Herman, stumbling around the bases.' But they didn't play up the fact that I got back safe, or that I drove in the tying and winning runs!"

BUT THAT BRIEF TRIP back to Brooklyn, where, for the record, he hit .285 in 37 appearances, did a worse thing for Herman than add to his klutz image. He lost his eligibility for early admission to the Hall of Fame because of the rule which states that a player must be retired for five years before his entry can be voted upon.

"In 1944, I was talking to Casey," recalls Herman, "and he told me that some writers were going to put me in the Hall the next year. Now, by going back for Rickey, I had to start all over again, and in the meantime, Paul Gallico was no longer writing sports, Sid Murcer was dead, Grantland Rice was dead, all the people who had really watched me and followed baseball and knew the legends were just legends, they were all gone, and after another five years, there a bunch of guys who had never seen me play at my peak. So all they can go on is records, which don't tell I never got hit on the head with a fly ball, and the legends are stronger than the records."

Tippy's Wings Crows 40-31

The Adult 3-Man Hunch Basketball League, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, began league play last week with exciting action in both the open and six-foot and under divisions.

In the 6-foot and under division, Tippy's led by Ralph Simpson's 24 points, defeated the Crows 40-31. Don Frediani tossed in 16 points for the Crows.

Balanced team scoring by IF paved the way to a 41-21 victory over the Bank Shots. Al Voight scored 14 points and teammates Marv Vigo and Dave Olivo tallied 12 points each for IF. Fran Swanson scored 10 points for the Bank Shots.

In the closest game of the night, Brian Dorn's lay-up gave Serra Stereo a narrow 41-35 victory over a tough Wonders team.

Tony Passanisi led the way for Serra Stereo, scoring a game high 19 points and teammate Brian Dorn added 12 more points. John Francovich and Rich Olsen led the Wonders with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

In the open division, it took a 24-point performance by Mike Kennedy to help the Sportsman edge a very good Birds team 43-39. Steve Saks of the Birds turned in a fine performance as he tallied 17 points.

The Jaguars, paced by a 16 point effort from Mike Murphy, defeated the City Slickers 41 to 26. John Barnden of the Jaguars added 11 more points and Fred DeJarlais led the City Slickers with 10 points. In the closing game of the evening, The Dirty Shirts came back to defeat a stubborn No-Stars team 40-36.

Ralph Sands and Dan Hallford led the Dirty Shirts, scoring 20 and 16 points, respectively. The win overshadowed a game high 21 point effort from the No-Stars, John Frazier.

One dollar is the selling price for the 1977 Girl Scout calendars for sale through this month. The attractive full-color "Portrait of Scouting" arrangement lends itself beautifully to meeting and menu planning.

All profits from the calendar to go the local Council to provide direct support services for each girl.

City-wide chairwoman for the calendar sale is Karen Rodgers who can be contacted for more information. The local Girl Scout office is at 58 Cypress Lane, Brisbane. Association meeting for the Daly City Girl Scout Association is set for Nov. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at Hope Lutheran Church under the chairmanship of Mary Ann Dale.

'Recipes' for Your Own Home Products

By MICHELLE CARTER

"The work week is getting shorter and people have a lot more leisure time. They might as well spend it caulking their boat and making their own caulking compound."

Sounds like reasonable advice from Norman Stark, author and chemist, and he's ready to provide you with a simple, nontechnical formula for that compound. It's included in his most recent book, "The Formula Book 2" ($5.95, Sheed, Andrews and McMeel, Inc., Kansas City).

The book is a sequel to his best-selling (over 300,000 copies) "Formula Book" published less than a year ago. Both books are chock-full of recipes for concocting home versions of hundreds of household products normally purchased over the counter in drug or grocery stores.

"With the help of Norman Stark and his 'Formula' books, anyone can whip up his own supply of bathtub and sink cleaner, furniture oil (with or without the lemon scent), dog shampoo, facial pore closer or deodorant at a small fraction of the price you pay for these commercially manufactured items."

"When a woman goes into a store and sees a dress she likes, she has the option of buying that dress at the price asked or she can go out and buy fabric and a pattern and make the dress herself at considerable savings."

"I'm just trying to provide that same option when it comes to household products. . . . People seem to be intimidated when it comes to working with chemicals but I try to put everything in its simplest terms and work only with chemicals readily available to consumers," Stark said.

Stark, who was trained as a chemist, got into chemical research during World War II when he developed and manufactured products for the War Department.

Several patents resulted from the Stark Research Co., but Stark gave up the manufacturing end of his operation shortly after the war. He continued to do research and did consulting work for the companies which eventually manufactured the products he developed.

The joy for him was in the research, not the production.

"I like to build the thing once, but not twice."

His research "became a hobby of mine. I'd take a manufacturer's formula and see if I could reduce its cost and make it simpler. I just tucked all those formulas away in a safe."

Then in 1970 he put his formulas into "The Formula Manual," a textbook used in chemistry classes from the junior high school to university level. The focus of the manual is to give students practical information instead of just theory.

"I think the teaching of theoretical chemistry is wrong unless someone is going into a technical field. I want to give these kids something practical, something that's tied to their outside world."

"If I teach a kid to make a silicone lubricant and he can go out and lubricate his bicycle, then he has learned the chemical components of something that is useful to him. It has meaning for him."

A syndicated newspaper column grew out of the publication of the manual and the Formula books were not far behind.

Stark feels that the idea of making your own household formula fits right in with the do-it-yourself, back-to-the-earth trend, and the economic benefits ought to be enough to interest conscientious consumers.

"As a general rule of thumb, if you pay $1 for an item, it will have about three cents value — including the container."

"Take ordinary antiperspirant. No matter how it is presented it is an astringent that reduces the size of the pores. Almost every manufacturer uses the same active ingredient — powdered alum."

what about alcohol. A child probably won't drink more than a mouthful of Scotch because it tastes bad, but what about creme de cacao. He might drink the whole bottle and it would kill him."

Here are a couple examples of Stark's unique recipes from "The Formula Book 2":

Grass Stain Remover

"All you need is to mix 1 1/2 C. isopropyl alcohol (91 per cent) with 1/2 C. water. Before putting the textile in the washing machine, soak the spot in this mixture for a few minutes and rub away the stain."

Foot Powder

"All you need to make it is 1 3/4 C. cornstarch and 1/4 C. boric acid. Dry mix these two materials together. To use, sprinkle on feet before putting on socks."

Stark maintains that all the chemicals mentioned in the book can be obtained from most drug stores, but sometimes in larger quantities than necessary. If anyone has trouble finding small amounts of the needed chemicals, Stark has a possible solution.

"We have found a company in Tucson (where he lives) that repackages chemicals for schools. They will repackage any chemical you want in any quantity. You do have to pay for postage so you ought to order all that you'll want at one time. The company is Chem-Pack, P.O. Box 27163, Tucson, Ariz."

"I don't make a dime off them but I tell people about them if they can't get what they need where they live."

Burglary Charged

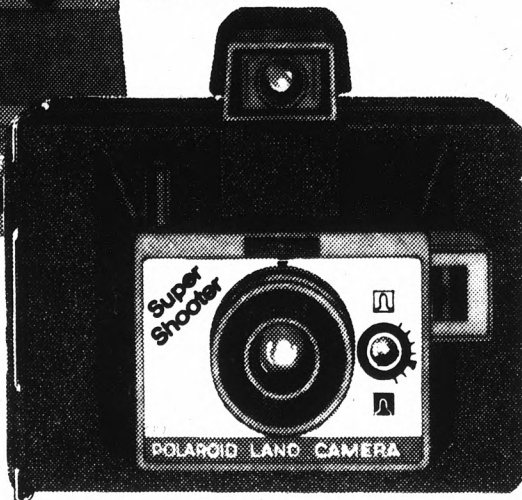

R.V. Moreci 26, an unemployed elevator operator from San Francisco was arrested last week in Burlingame on a charge of burglary.

Moreci, said police, is accused of having smashed a window of the Treasure Chest jewelry store at 1427 Burlingame Ave. and of having grabbed some jewels from the window.

North County Greyhound Service Pact in Negotiation

The San Mateo County Transit District is negotiating a three-year contract with Greyhound Bus Lines to operate 15 buses along the El Camino Real, the Cabrillo Highway and other thoroughfares, North County officials were told Thursday night.

John Mauro, SamTrans general manager, advised members of the North County Council of Cities that he is nearing completion of an agreement that will implant a "north-south spine" in the district bus route system.

Mauro said the agreement provides for Greyhound to supply drivers to operate buses along the El Camino Real from Palo Alto to the Daly City BART station and other routes.

The agreement, he said, further provides that Greyhound bus fares will be brought into line with the present district fares. That means instead of paying 60 cents a bus ride, the fare would be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for senior citizens. Transfers would be free.

Mauro also announced that beginning Jan. 3 the district will provide bus service to Daly City. He said that between 16 and 18 buses will operate daily.

The general manager said members of his staff now are purchasing buses to service Daly City. Most of the buses, he said, are 1965 models.

In other business Thursday, the council:

- Unanimously approved a resolution calling on the state legislature, the governor and the director of transportation to set as a highway construction priority the completion of the 19th Avenue interchange which San Mateo City Mayor John Murray called one of the most dangerous intersections in the state.

- Unanimously agreed to hold a spring conference at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Burlingame Councilman Irving Amstrup asked why the conference could not be held in this county to benefit hotels here. Daly City Councilman Al Teglia, who is helping to plan the event, replied that it is often better for city officials to discuss business in a "relaxed remote atmosphere."

SSF Eyes Parcel Option

The South San Francisco City Council is getting ready to buy a $625,000 land parcel to expand its sewage treatment plants and, as of Wednesday night, had an 11-month option to prove it.

The council voted unanimously to enter the option at $1,818 a month or $19,998 for 11 months.

By that time, Director of Public Services Bob Yee said, the council will have decided whether it can afford to buy the property and if it should go through with the deal.

The option-to-buy was discussed in executive session.

Assistant City Manager Mike Wilson said the 35 acres are adjacent to the city's sewage treatment plant, off South Airport Boulevard at the end of Belle Aire Road, and is owned by Utah International.

Wilson said the option will give the council a chance to carefully consider the land purchase without the price of the land escalating in the meantime.

South San Francisco has been told by State Water Quality Control Board officials that it must upgrade treatment at its existing plant. At the same time, the council is considering its role in the North County Waste Management program, which will require additional construction.

Yee said the 35 acres will be used for both purposes.

The exact cost of the facilities to be built on the land is unknown, Yee said, although it is expected that 87 1/2 per cent of the funding will come from a federal grant.

Both city officials said the intent of the council is to sell city-owned property in front of the sewage treatment plant on Belle Air Road.

Neither Yee nor Wilson knew the exact value of the property, but Yee said it is worth substantially more than the property the city is planning to buy. If the property sale is successfully carried out by the city, it should more than pay for the Utah International land, he said.

"At this point we don't have enough information to put a figure on it," Yee said. "But if we can sell the front piece we will have more money than we need."

If the city is unable to sell the land, the council will have to look at other possibilities for funding the land purchase.

It would be possible, Yee said, to build the needed facilities on the land the city already owns in front of the plant.

However, he added, the planning staff believes that the value of the city's land makes it more suitable for commercial use.

Wilson also said that the staff hopes the property can be sold to a company interested in light manufacturing or, possibly for motel or hotel construction, so the city can benefit through sales revenue and increased property values.

Although the land is located directly across from the existing sewage treatment plant, Wilson said that shouldn't be a deterrent to hotel or motel construction. The design of either could be adapted to the surroundings, he said.

Wilson said the city has held onto the land over the years because it was expected that WQCB officials eventually would demand sewage treatment plant expansion.

However, with the Utah property now for sale, building the facilities on that property and selling the city's property would be wiser, he said.

Walks Help Renew Self-Confidence

A South San Francisco councilman who has been a minority of one in many recent council votes says a door-to-door residential survey is restoring his self-confidence.

Dick Battaglia, a councilman since 1974, had said he would change his minority stands or resign from the council if his venture into the city's neighborhoods proved his views are not shared by South San Francisco residents.

That decision now appears unnecessary, he said. He's learning that his opinions — which frequently cause council conflict — are not way off base.

"I've found out I'm not fighting windmills," Battaglia said.

So far, he has visited families in Sunshine Gardens, Buri Buri, Winston Manor and, last week, the Pecks Lot area near Randolph Avenue.

Battaglia, the city's mayor last year, began knocking on doors in October after weeks of thought.

He said he had been worried about his frequent differences of opinion with the other four councilmen for several weeks.

Battaglia surfaced after the March election being the dissenting councilman in 4-1 votes on many important matters, including:

- The firing of City Manager Ed Alario.
- The abandonment of a two-year-old plan for a $4.5 million Public Safety Facility.

- The sale of city owned property to balance the budget.

- A new retirement plan for the city's fire fighters.

- The denial of a use permit application for a controversial shopping center at Westborough Boulevard and El Camino Real.

- The postponement of appointing a staff committee to begin preparing the 1977-78 budget now.

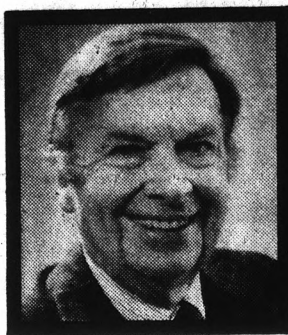

Battaglia said he scheduled a constituent meeting soon after he was elected to the council but only two residents showed up after he spent $75 for an ad in the newspaper.

When he was first appointed mayor, he held meetings with residents in City Hall but those also faded away.

One day, he decided that he should go to the residents, rather than expecting them to come to him.

"I'm very pleased with the results," Battaglia said. "I'm feeling very supported. I find I'm not really that far off base."

He said he's trying to reach every neighborhood in the city by knocking on as many doors as possible three hours every Sunday.

Anniversary Parties Invited to Nick's

Celebrating an anniversary or birthday? Three perfect restaurant settings (CAPTAIN CHARLES, THE MOONRAKER and the original NICK'S) are located only steps away from the Pacific Ocean at Rockaway Beach. All offer superb menus and outstanding service. THE CASTAWAY, Coyote Point, has designed a special menu for Thanksgiving Day dining. Another record-breaking crowd is expected. Early reservations are advisable. French restaurants have truly invaded the Peninsula, and each one is doing right well, thank you. One to soon invite your patronage is GARE SAINT LAZARE, named after a famous train station in Paris, France, which opens this month. HARRY CURUSIS and MEL CICERO, San Bruno's BAYHILL LOUNGE co-owners, are now featuring HELEN'S Fashion Shows every Tuesday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. YOLANDA'S in the South San Francisco Produce Terminal, will be ready, willing and able to serve you a whoppin' Thanksgiving Dinner, complete with complimentary wine. The $5.25 dinner will be served 2 to 10 p.m. Newest drink sensation at the elegant PHIL LEHR'S Wellington Room in San Francisco is the Suntory Royal Cloud. It is a smooth blend of equal parts of Suntory Royal Special Reserve Whisky, Galliano and cream. "Happier Hours" are hours of relaxation at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City. Drinks are a special price (except premium and liqueurs) 10 p.m. to closing Monday through Thursday, from 10:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and 9:30 p.m. on Sundays.

New Coupon Program South Lake Tahoe

A new refund coupon, worth more cash, has been introduced for the SOUTH LAKE TAHOE NUGGET. This coupon is part of the initial cash bonus given patrons at BARNEY'S when they redeem the CAMINO TRAVEL golden rod bonus sheet found at various restaurants and rest stops on the highway to Lake Tahoe. Dancing to the CHARLIE BLACKWELL TRIO is a great way to spend a relaxed evening in the VILLA LOUNGE. From current hits to nostalgic "Big Band" numbers, the group does it all. Although ROMANO'S in Rockaway Beach is famed for Italian dishes, pizza, pizza and more pizza has also established ENRICO ROMANO'S restaurant as a coastside dining landmark. MURRAY LEHR, "The Green Grower," wouldn't dream of using anything but fresh fruit in the drinks served at his famed LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant in San Francisco. Order a fresh fruit daiquiri (five to choose from) and discover what fresh fruit can do for a drink. ROLAND RAVENS, owner of RAVENS COTTAGE in Belmont, is making his first venture into the restaurant business. Ravens has enjoyed working in many of the Peninsula's leading restaurants and decided to hang up his own shingle. Traditional turkey, Cornish Game Hen and Virginia Ham will be on the special Thanksgiving menu at THE FISHERMAN in Burlingame. Open all day, 11:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., they will also offer their regular seafood-Italian menu. Free parking is another well thought-out accommodation at VINCE'S ITALIAN AND SEAFOOD restaurant, located on San Mateo's busy El Camino Real.

Three Still Tied For Lead in NPL

By JOHN MURPHY
Post Correspondent

Westmoor and El Camino high school, survived scares while Half Moon Bay breezed to an easy win as all three remained atop the North Peninsula League football standings with 4-1 records.

Westmoor scored all its points in the fourth quarter to edge host Serramonte 22-21 and El Camino topped South San Francisco 10-8.

Half Moon Bay pounded Oceana 27-12 and Terra Nova beat Jefferson 21-8.

Westmoor-Serramonte

John Smith's miraculous 56-yard scoring reception with 10 seconds remaining completed an amazing fourth quarter comeback and kept the Rams' title hopes alive.

Smith took Jack Dorn's desperation pass between two defenders and outraced both of them to pull the Rams to within one point. Mike McLennan's off-tackle conversion run provided Westmoor with its slim margin of victory.

Serramonte, which was outgained by Westmoor 253-53, took advantage of two key Ram mistakes to mount a 21-0 lead after three periods.

The Regents managed one legitimate drive in the first period, going 70 yards in seven plays with Greg Isom scoring from the six for 7-0.

Serramonte increased its lead early in the third quarter on Dan Lara's 38-yard interception return. Then, on Westmoor's first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, the Regents picked up a fumble deep in Ram territory.

Serramonte cashed in quickly on Ron Gibson's nine-yard scoring jaunt as the Regents appeared to take a commanding lead.

However, Westmoor fought its way back into the game by scoring on its first two opportunities of the final quarter.

McLennan's two-yard scoring run capped a seven-play, 66-yard drive. He also added the conversion run for 21-8. The key play in that series was a 27-yard pass play from Dorn to wide receiver Marcel Crossland.

Westmoor followed that drive by recovering an onside kick. Alva Warner pounced on the loose ball and the Rams took over on Serramonte's 43. Seven plays later Smith found Crossland on a 10-yard option pass to make it 21-14, setting up Westmoor's last-minute heroics.

Dorn connected on 10 of 19 passes for 198 yards and one TD. Smith had four of those receptions for 83 yards.

HMB-Oceana

Quarterback Grant Campbell and halfback Pete Welty paced Half Moon Bay.

Campbell completed six of nine passes for 134 yards and two touchdowns. One of those scoring tosses was a 67-yard bomb to wide receiver John Galvin.

Welty carried 34 times for 145 yards. Much of that yardage came on two long first-half Cougar scoring drives resulting in successive three-yard Welty TD runs.

The quality of HMB's defensive play was best illustrated by the situation Oceana found itself in on its last possession. The Sharks faced a fourth and 65 on their own 32 and then got dumped for a 10-yard loss.

Most of Oceana's yardage came through the air, including both touchdowns. Shark QB Dan Hinds had a 73-yard scoring toss to Bob Silicani and a 12-yard TD pass to Jim McCrary.

El Camino-SSF

As expected, South City saved its best effort of the season for cross-town rival El Camino. And with any semblance of a passing attack SSF might have scored a big upset.

The Colts took the upper hand in the first period on Dennis Cowen's 13-yard TD run. That play capped a short 33-yard scoring drive.

Just before the end of the half, El Camino found the board again. Jim Herron split the uprights with a 22-yard field goal, culminating a time-consuming march which began at the Colt 46.

South City came within striking distance early in the third period on two long gainers by fullback Kevin Brahmey. Brahmey followed a 23-yard run with a 22-yard scamper for the touchdown. Tom Bernal's conversion pass on a halfback option to John Buerger made it 10-8.

It was strictly a defensive battle after that.

South City's best opportunity came late in the fourth period after Don Kent fell on a fumbled punt at the Colt 46. However, Cowen picked off a long pass and ran it back to midfield.

Cowen led all rushers with 87 yards on 20 carries. All of South City's yards came on the ground; the Warriors failed to complete a single pass.

Jefferson-Terra Nova

Terra Nova quarterback Darryl Fazio completed just three passes — but two of those were good for touchdown bombs. The first came on TN's initial play of the game, 81 yards to Mike Mooney.

Later in the period, Jefferson's Chuck Reed scored from 35 yards out and the Indians went on to lead 8-6 at halftime. Then, three plays into the third quarter, Fazio and Ed Pulanco teamed up on a 71-yard TD play.

With 59 seconds left in the game, Fazio snuck over from the one for the Tigers' third score.

Terra Nova's Jeff Bartizal picked up 98 yards on 22 carries. Jeff's Don Ball had six receptions for 92 yards.

Westmoor wingback John Smith (40), shown here in a game against San Mateo, was the hero in Friday's come-from-behind 22-21 win over Serramonte. He threw a 10-yard TD pass and caught a last-second 56-yard TD pass.

CSM Routs DeAnza — Bohling Scores 3

By FRED BAER

LOS ALTOS HILLS — Opposing teams in the Golden Gate Conference might feel fortunate today that they haven't seen a lot of College of San Mateo's Dewey Bohling this season.

From the time Bohling touched the opening kickoff Friday night, host De Anza College knew it was in trouble. The Bulldogs scored 35 points in the first 18:15 of play en route to a 48-21 victory.

Bohling, who was slowed by a leg injury early and has had to share tailback duties with returning second team All-GGC runner Bill Ring this season, scored three touchdowns the first four times he handled the ball Friday night at Foothill College Stadium.

While Ring was the all-purpose star in CSM's last game, against CCSF, it was Bohling's turn this time to gain over 200 all-purpose yards — rushing for 98 yards on nine carries (an 11-yard average), catching a pass for 13 yards and returning that opening kickoff 91 yards. That's 202 yards in just 11 plays, an average of 18.4 yards for the 1975 Hillsdale grad who had originally enrolled at University of Nevada, Reno.

"I'm happy when I do get to play a lot, but I usually don't," said Bohling. "But I wasn't that proud of my performance tonight, either. De Anza was not that good."

Still the victory was necessary for the Bulldogs to remain in a first-place tie at 5-1 in the GGC with San Jose, which beat Chabot 17-3 Friday night. CCSF (4-1) can rejoin a three-way deadlock with a victory over West Valley (1-4) tonight at Buck Shaw Stadium.

West Valley visits CSM next Saturday afternoon as the Bulldogs hope to stay in the running for November 27 Bay Bowl bid.

"Our special teams were the key," said CSM coach Bill Dickey after Friday night's game. "That run of Bohling's to start the game was great. Then we had the punt return by Ron Walton. And Ralph Costanzo threw the ball well."

The Bulldogs scored on their first five possessions while holding De Anza to one first down, on a penalty. In fact CSM was penalized for more yards in the game (190) than the Dons gained offensively (160).

De Anza didn't complete a pass in the first half but did score once before intermission because of a pass play. CSM was called for pass interference for impeding a Don receiver, giving De Anza a first down on the Bulldog 31. Quarterback Bob Bachanas scored on fourth down from the one after 235-pound Don fullback Frank Manumaleuna was stopped for no gain on third down by Mark Rud.

The state's number two large division rusher, Manumaleuna gained only 21 yards on nine carries in the game. He did look impressive on a seven-yard TD run with a pitch in the fourth quarter.

But the Bulldogs had already done all the necessary damage.

Bohling sprinted 91 yards down the left sideline with practically no opposition with the opening kickoff. The Bulldogs marched 68 yards the next time they got the ball, scoring on an unusual play. Ring ran 15 yards from the De Anza 29 but fumbled to Ron Mixco, who took the errant ball the remaining 14 yards.

Four plays after the ensuing kickoff, Ron Walton took a De Anza punt on his own 31 and ran practically straight down the right sideline for a 69-yard score.

Four downs later CSM was on a 70-yard march, keyed by Costanzo passes to John O'Leary and Bill Ring before Bohling scored from the two on a left side sweep.

De Anza was frustrated on four more plays and CSM began to march again. Paul Bachtold made two outstanding pass receptions, including a one-hander while falling on his side as Costanzo scrambled on the run. CSM was almost stymied on third and 20 (after a penalty) when Bohling took the ball on a delayed draw and rammed 51 yards up the middle to pay dirt.

Costanzo seemed to be bothered little by numerous 15-yard penalties, repeatedly throwing to make-up the difference. He was effective on screen passes to Ring, while both O'Leary and Bohling made several spectacular catches.

O'Leary caught two second-half TD passes, of eight and 20 yards, fighting his way over the goal line with the latter while in the grasp of two defenders. Bachtold regained the conference receiving leadership with six receptions for 85 yards. (Foothill's John Soltan, who came into the weekend with one more catch, 40, than Bachtold, doesn't play until tonight but the Owls have only one other game remaining, while CSM has two.)

"Our players were trying tonight," said Dickey. "I felt just before the game that we were up for it after all." Dickey had been apprehensive about the team's attitude towards the game earlier in the week.

Costanzo, the ex-baseball player from Capuchino, had his best game since taking the helm from injured conference passing leader Randy Gomez, completing 16 of 25 passes (64 per cent) for 202 yards.

"Ralph has surprised a lot of people," noted Bohling. "Moving up to first team has helped his confidence."

SC Harriers Win Title

By FRED BAER

Skyline College upset dual champion Monterey Peninsula with a great team effort Saturday afternoon to win the Trojans' second straight Coast Conference cross country title.

Hosting the conference finals on their home Crystal Springs course in Belmont, the Trojans put all five of their men in the top 11 to outscore MPC, 33-35.

MPC's 6-0 dual record was good for 12 points (to ten for Skyline's 5-1 mark) but the Trojans picked up 20 for winning the finals to 17 for Monterey. That gave Skyline a final total of 30 to 29 for MPC and 22 for third place Cabrillo. Menlo placed sixth in both the finals and overall standings.

Oceana grad Bill LaForge paced the Trojans with a second place finish in 21:17 behind Monterey's Andy Jones (21:04) on the 4.1 mile course. Skyline's Bob Lange was fourth and Bill Amable sixth.

The fact that MPC's fifth man Mike Kennada placed only 15th while Skyline completed its score with 10th place Steve Cornejo and 11th place Jim Martinielli made the difference.

Skyline's Morijo Connelly placed second in the women's division race but the Trojans did not have a full team as Cabrillo edged MPC for team honors.

SM Edged Crestmoor

By DAN BERTELOTTI

Crestmoor High had never beaten San Mateo in a Mid-Peninsula League football game in the 14-year history of the league.

Friday, with less than three minutes remaining, Crestmoor had host San Mateo on the ropes, leading 7-6.

But in the last two minutes, the roof fell in and San Mateo claimed its first MPL win of the season, 18-7 over the winless Falcons.

Crestmoor's 7-6 lead held up well into the fourth period. After a short Falcon punt, San Mateo took over on the Crestmoor 46 with 6:46 left.

Eight plays later at the 2:10 mark, wingback Rod Jones went 19 yards on an inside reverse for the winning points.

Crestmoor had led 7-0 at halftime on a 40-yard halfback pass from Rick Gardner to Dennis Heaney. Heaney outjumped three Bearcat defenders to grab the ball.

San Mateo finally got on the scoreboard on its first drive of the second half. Barry Graves took a pitchout and broke at least three tackles on a 10-yard scoring run. SM's PAT pass failed and it was 7-6 Crestmoor.

San Mateo's defense added to the final margin on the series after Jones scored. Crestmoor dropped a pitchout and several Bearcat linemen dribbled the ball into the end zone where Dan Ramirez fell on it for a TD.

SM's Mike Henson was the game's leading rusher, netting 72 yards on 14 carries. Bearcat quarterback Rich Beames completed five of nine tosses for 103 yards, including two key completions on the winning TD drive.

The Bearcat defense controlled the game in the second half, allowing just one first down and minus one yard total, until Crestmoor completed a last-second 51-yard pass.

San Mateo's worst-ever MPL record was 2-4. The Bearcats are now 1-3 with Mills and Burlingame left to play

CSM's Chances Hurt

West Valley doesn't play College of San Mateo until Saturday afternoon at College Heights but the Vikings have already put a big dent in the Bulldog's Bay Bowl hopes.

A 7-0 West Valley upset of tri-leader City College of San Francisco Saturday night left CSM and San Jose CC the Golden Gate Conference co-leaders at 5-1. But San Jose has defeated the Bulldogs, giving the Jaguars the edge if the race remains deadlocked at the end.

CSM had beaten CCSF while the Rams in turn knocked off San Jose, necessitating a conference vote had the league title wound-up a three-way tie.

San Jose has yet to play dangerous Diablo Valley (Friday night) and closes at Laney. CSM, in addition to hosting West Valley Saturday afternoon, closes at defending champion Chabot November 19.

Serra Downs SH Gridders

Serra High fullback Steve Venditti rushed for three touchdowns and 124 yards on 16 carries Friday, leading the Padres to a 42-0 rout of Sacred Heart in a West Catholic Athletic League football game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco.

The victory was Serra's first in the WCAL after four losses. The Padres are 5-4 overall. Sacred Heart is 0-4 and 2-6.

VINTAGE MUSICAL GETS BRIGHT NEW VISAGE

Cole Porter liked to make audiences laugh otherwise he wouldn't have written such comical tongue-twisters as "They Couldn't Compare To You." So he'd probably be pleased to hear the response his 1950 musical, "Out of This World," is getting these nights, even in a slightly off-beat, naughty version at the new Phoenix Theatre at 430 Broadway, San Francisco.

What begins as a smile over such silly shenanigans as Juno opening an umbrella with antennae coming out of the top, easily turns into a belly laugh as the high-spirited company, assembled from some of the top San Francisco talent by director Don McLean, fairly gallops and prances through a dizzy, campy musical delight.

"The antennae was supposed to detect thunderbolts but all I get is Channel 36," the divine goddess claims in obvious reference to Carol Doda whose club has been converted into the latest showcase for a repertoire of seldom-done vintage musicals.

It really doesn't matter that the plot is a retelling of the Amphitryon legend because it is the imagination and inventive direction of McLean that makes the lightweight show such a merry romp. And while the musical score has some interesting moments with "From This Moment On" and "Use Your Imagination," it is the fresh, irresistible singing and acting of Jim Dodge as the "celestial bellhop, Mercury" and the outrageously sarcastic husband-hounding of Carolyn Zaremba as Juno that make the two-act comedy bristle and crackle with an infectious spirit.

Hampered by a small stage that isn't wide enough for any really fancy dancing, choreographer Marilyn Means Izdebski adapts the dances to comic movements like western folk-steps, chorus line kicks, buck 'n wing and some sexy strutting. Nothing really fits into a style and the costumes are so wild that I don't know if they're on purpose or by mistake, by design or from lack of money.

Pamela Brooks cuts a lovely figure as the petulant bride who has attracted the roving eye of the god Jupiter and makes love to him unknowingly when he assumes the mortal appearance of her husband, a boob of a newspaper reporter who is more interested in chasing down a creep of a petty crook than in his honeymoon. She is as elegant as a butterscotch sundae and just as refreshing to hear in the show's two best songs.

Patti Appel makes an appealing innocent Earth mortal who succumbs to the passionate advances of Mercury after inquiring about his silver winged shoes. Jim Mariner is a handsome, well-bronzed, bare-chested philandering husband-father, Jupiter. John Knowles is the schnook of a reporter who meets himself coming and going from his wife's chamber in the double role of mortal and god.

They've let their hair down and taken liberties in hopes of engaging the audience in a laugh fest. I think you'll get a kick out of it. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Mondays; 8 and 10:30 p.m. on Saturdays and at 7:30 p.m. Sundays.

Disaster in Fog Along SM Coast

A foggy weekend spelled disaster for numerous vessels off the San Mateo County and San Francisco coasts, it was reported today.

There were so many incidents involving boats that the U.S. Coast Guard apparently has been overwhelmed by the volume, and has been unable so far to give a complete accounting.

At least seven boats were in trouble off this county's coast over the weekend, where Half Moon Bay Fire Protection District Chief Larry Centoni said the fog was the quickest forming and thickest he had ever seen.

The first report of a boat in distress came in at 4:08 p.m. Saturday, when San Mateo County sheriff's deputies raced to the Fitzgerald Marine Preserve.

Three occupants of the vessel, a 21-foot inboard-outboard, had safely made it to shore, but one of the victims had collapsed while clinging to a rock.

Deputies found Bobby Dee Price, 44, and Susan Claire McShene, 24, both of Mountain View, giving resuscitation to their companion, Frank Nicolaion, 56, of 240 Mountain Home Road, Woodside.

The trio had been fishing when the fog suddenly rolled in at 3:30 p.m., and they headed back to Pillar Point Harbor.

On the way in, the vessel struck a submerged rock and the engine quit. The stricken vessel began to take on water, and drifted onto coastal rocks. The trio abandoned ship.

Price and McShene assisted Nicolaion to a rock. He clung to it but swallowed a lot of water, they told deputies.

The pair said their companion "went limp" when they attempted to pull him off the rock, and they struggled to bring him onto the beach, where they were met by deputies and an ambulance from Half Moon Bay.

Nicolaion was rushed to Moss Beach Hospital, where his condition was stabilized, and transferred to Chope Community Hospital in San Mateo, where he is reported in fair condition in the hospital's intensive care unit today.

At 12:15 p.m. Sunday, a 15-foot outboard vessel carrying four Sacramento persons became lost in the fog near Dunes Beach in Half Moon Bay and overturned.

Half Moon Bay police and a ranger from the Half Moon Bay State Beaches rushed to the scene as the boat's four occupants struggled through the pounding surf toward the shore.

The four, identified as Roy E. Jamison, Dewie Wyatt, Elizabeth Grantham and Carolyn Grantham, made it ashore safely. Their capsized boat eventually ended up on the beach with them.

During the afternoon, the vessel "Blue waters," moored in the harbor at Pillar Point, began to take on water and harbor crewmen had to stabilize the vessel to keep it from going under.

At 6 p.m. Sunday, the Pillar Point Harbor Master's Office received a distress call from a Boston whaler that had become lost in the fog south of the harbor.

Harbor crewmen rushed to the aid of the vessel in the patrol boat "Vigilant," a radar-equipped vessel.

While searching for the whaler, the "Vigilant" happened upon the fishing vessel "Lobos," also lost in the fog.

The "Vigilant" towed the Boston whaler into port, and safely escorted the "Lobos" back in as well.

Shortly before its rescue mission with the Boston whaler and the "Lobos," the office received a distress call from the fishing vessel "Pelican" which was reportedly taking on water south of the harbor after losing a universal joint. The "Vigilant" was able to reach the "Pelican" and bring her back to port as well.

A third call was received after the "Lobos" rescue, and this time the 50-foot "Pisces" reported itself lost in the fog, and once again the "Vigilant's" radar brought the lost vessel home safely.

The fog was lifting early today, but one of its victims — a luxury sports cruiser — was still aground on submerged rocks off Fort Point near the Golden Gate Bridge.

A tug boat and barge equipped with a derrick awaited a high tide to lift the 50-ton Argo from its rocky cradle about 30 yards from shore. The 60-foot charter fishing boat ran aground in thick fog Saturday night with 40 passengers and crewmen aboard.

Millbrae Fire Chief Robert Kohler is reportedly co-owner of the vessel.

The Coast Guard said today that at least 20 boats were reported overdue or lost in the fog. None was considered to be in serious difficulty.

"This is fairly unusual," said seaman Larry Clark, a Coast Guard spokesman. "This fog is hanging lower than the usual summer fog we have here. It's also a little deceptive since we have clear, shirt-sleeve weather inside the bay, but fog outside the Gate."

The overdue vessels are just taking it easy coming back inside," said Clark. "We're trying to help the lost ones find their bearings. And if we can't do that, we're advising them to just hang loose until the fog lifts."

The fog was so thick at one point, said Clark, that one Coast Guard coxswain

Visibility began improving early today, but that was too late for the Argo which, despite the aid of electronic navigational equipment, ran aground about an hour after sunset

Saturday at the south end of the Golden Gate Bridge.

John Torni, a passenger, said he was standing outside the bridge when he saw three lights from historic Fort Point loom out of the fog. "I pounded on the window, but it was too late," he said. The boat settled on the rocks "with a fairly firm nudge."

It took dozens of people from the Coast Guard, fire department and nearby Army Presidio to rescue the 40 persons stranded on board the Argo. Most were evacuated by way of a nylon lifeline stretched to shore, but a helicopter also flew dangerously close to the bridge to hoist several people from the boat.

Passengers remained calm throughout the rescue. "There was no mad rush to get off," said Barbara Paul, 29, of Santa Clara.

Sr. Citizens Open Bazaar

There will be lots of hustle and bustle in the Lincoln Park Memorial building today when the Daly City Senior Citizens open the doors to the Christmas Bazaar at 10 a.m.

Early shoppers can count on having the widest selection of elegant, homemade cakes, homemade candies of the variety you haven't tasted in years and lovely pieces of needlework to keep or give as gifts.

The sale hours are from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. and the members of the club will be happy to greet you, let you browse and shop and, incidentally, they will be happy to tell any prospective members about the club and its activities.

The seniors meet each Wednesday for some type of fellowship and program. This past week a representative of the Arthritic Association of San Francisco presented a film and talked on the problems caused by one of America's most common diseases. Also on the agenda this last Wednesday was the first meeting of the nominating committee which is now hard at work selecting nominees for the executive board to be elected in December.

DID YOU READ that little notice about taxes being increased this coming year? Riva Krips certainly did and she was motivated to join forces with Ed Rivera of Channel 14 in the formation and presentation of a panel to discuss the question of homeowners taxes in the North part of San Mateo County. The panel will be presented on Channel 14, Nov. 12 at 7 p.m. and will be rerun at 5 p.m. on Sunday evening. Rivera will produce and emcee the panel. Appearing with him will be Mrs. Krips, a member of the Westlake Home Owners Association; Mrs. Susan Johnson, a director of the Broadmoor-Colma Homeowners association; Douglas Dawkins, president of the North San Mateo County Taxpayers Association; Ralph Boynton, president of the Town Hall Association of San Mateo County and Kenneth Knops, a member of the Hillsborough Home Owners Association.

Give a listen and let them know how you feel about the program!

MEMBERS OF the Latin Club are spending the coming weekend in Reno enjoying the fun and relaxation of a weekend away from home but next week it will be work as usual on plans for the annual Latin Club Christmas party for the children of Daly City.

Mrs. Nemer Gonzalez reports that the offers are coming in already from members of the community who are anxious to continue the tradition of total community involvement in this big party. Gifts, valued at $2 or less are being left in the rectory for distribution at the party and pledges of food and entertainment are being accepted. The Lee Lane Red Shoe Dance Studio was one of the first to call and offer to participate, according to Mrs. Gonzalez.

THE SECOND Daly City Area Girl Scout Association meeting will be held on Tuesday of next week in Hope Lutheran Church. Mrs. Mary Ann Dale will chair this gathering set to begin at 7:30 p.m.

THE MARY'S HELP Hospital Guild's Boutique de Noel continues through November 22 in the solarium of the hospital. Lots of gifts, goodies and holiday decorations are being sold to raise money for the guild's pledge to the cardiac care division of the hospital.

HOME, JUST in time to lend a hand to the doings in the solarium, are guild members Mrs. Barbara William and guild treasurer Mrs. Jessie Lynch who spent a month touring such places as London, Paris, Lucerne, Sorrento, Capri, Pompeii and Rome.

IT WASN'T just the kids who had a ball on Halloween, the members of the Daly City Host Lions and Lionesses were having a howling good time as well, according to Mrs. Emmett Tierney. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Moon, the presidents of the two organizations, welcomed the members to their home for an old-fashioned, costume variety Halloween party, complete with prizes for the best costumes. (Taking the honors in that division were Emmett Tierney, the Man From Outer Space, and Bette Harper, a lovely Indian lass.)

Woman Beaten, Raped

A 22-year-old Los Angeles hospital worker was beaten and raped at Thornton Beach State Park Sunday morning after she accepted a ride from a man she met in San Francisco.

The victim, badly battered and suffering from shock, was taken to Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, for treatment after she stumbled to a highway and flagged down a passing motorist at 2:15 a.m. Sunday.

The victim is staying with friends in San Francisco and was offered a ride home from a man she met outside an all-night restaurant at Church and Market streets, police said.

The man said he would drive her home, but instead drove to the Daly City area.

At the entrance to Thornton Beach the man tried to break through the gate by ramming the metal barricade with his car.

When that failed, he dragged the woman from the car and began beating her, police said.

Following the rape, the man fled in a metallic blue 1970-71 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Det. Les Bastedo said.

The victim managed to climb up the steep roadway to Skyline Highway and stop a passing motorist.

Police described the man wanted in connection with the attack as a white male, 24 to 25 years old, with light brown or blond hair, moustache, and of slender build.

Man, 71, Held on Charges

South San Francisco police have charged a 71-year-old San Francisco warehouseman with 28 counts of child molesting.

Grant Cooper, of 197 Seventh St., San Francisco, was extradited from Corpus Christi, Texas, where he was arrested last week, on charges filed by South San Francisco Det. Miff Singleton.

The warrant for Cooper's arrest came after several weeks of investigating into complaints from parents of children that allegedly had fallen victim to Cooper, police said.

Cooper is divorced, police said.

Police charge that Cooper became friendly with families of his intended victims and would escort the children — all boys between the ages of 9-12 years old — to an outing in the area where he would molest them, according to police reports.

The accused man fled the Bay Area when he heard police were investigating him, Sgt. Fred Carelli said.

Cost Estimates Given For Transit Plans

A mass transit system between San Francisco and San Jose could cost anywhere between $31.1 million and $491.7 million, depending on what type of system is selected.

Walle Dela Barre, head of the consultant team which is preparing alternative transit plans for the Metropolitan Transportation Commission's Peninsula Transit Alternatives Project Committee, told the group Friday in Redwood City that a minimum upgrade of existing transportation — Southern Pacific, Greyhound and private autos — would cost $31.1 million, with a $3.8 million annual operating cost in 1976 dollars.

On the other hand, he reported, extension of BART service from Daly City to the San Francisco International Airport, with complementary bus service to San Jose and San Francisco, could cost up to $491.7 million to implement, and up to $32.7 million a year to operate.

The committee has been charged with developing a major mass transportation plan for submission to the State Legislature in January, with hopes of securing federal financing to develop a project.

One of the proposals is for a high level upgrading of the SP service, which Dela Barre estimates would cost $135 million, with a $24 million annual operating cost.

The committee is expected to make a decision at its Dec. 3 meeting concerning which type of a transportation system to recommend to the state legislature.

Man Escapes Burning Car

Michael Jennings Keady, 45, of 135 Shawnee Pass Road, Portola Valley, escaped from his burning car without injury after it burst into flames Wednesday morning.

The car hit a tree after Keady fell asleep at the wheel as he drove west on Sandhill Road west of Menlo Park, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officer V.L. Roper said the car ran off the roadway, down an embankment and hit a tree. The car was destroyed by flames, Roper reported.

Escaped Prisoner Welch Surrenders

James Udo Welch, 27, arrested for drunken driving, who walked out of the county jail Thursday when a prisoner with a similar name was called to be released had a streak of conscience and surrendered as did the right Welch, James Ray.

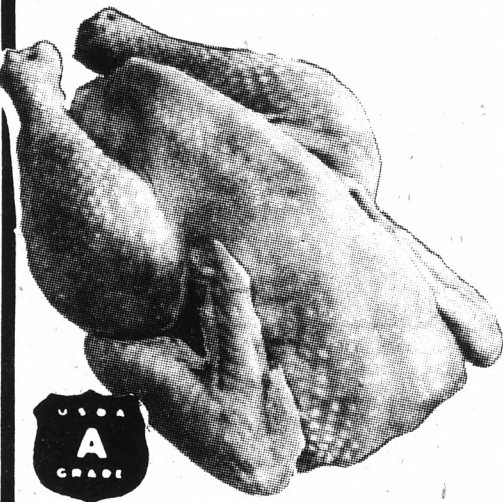

The wrong Welch forged his namesake's signature to a release slip and collected $165, Mackey said.

Apparently Welch's conscience won, however, and he turned himself into the county jail at 6:43 p.m. Friday.

Welch, who was serving time for burglary and was not due to be released until next March, walked up the front of the jail when the name of James Ray Welch was called. The latter Welch had been

Fire Officials Give Nod to Smoke Alarms

By GEORGE GOLDING

Are those highly advertised smoke alarms effective?

Safe enough to rely on?

Most of them are, according to Burlingame Fire Marshal Howard Pearson.

"When it comes to smoke alarms and heat detectors, the state goes one step beyond the usual requirements," he said. "They require that they be approved by the state fire marshal (in order) to be sold in California."

"There are two major types," Pearson explained: "one with photo-electric eye sensors in a unit no bigger than a kitchen clock and one with what is called an ionization chamber."

"The ionization chamber is the most sensitive, and can even measure invisible smoke particles. In fact, there were at first several complaints about its being too sensitive."

Inspector Pearson said approved fire detectors of either type have "a built-in level of sensitivity" so that they won't sound an alarm whenever someone broils a steak, fries bacon, or lights up a cigar.

There have been some "potentially defective" fire detectors on the market, he said, and anyone who has a question about the reliability of equipment he or she is considering purchasing should consult the local fire marshal.

"We have four books almost as big as telephone directories listing all the approved equipment," he said.

Redwood City Fire Inspector Al McKendry said the devices on the market "are safe, they are reliable, they do not release any measurable radiation that we can detect."

"You do have to be diligent in replacing batteries," he said, "but they have a built-in sounder that signals when the batteries are getting low. That's required in California."

"No device is 100 per cent reliable of course, but if you test them by blowing smoke into them before you hang them, they should work."

Inspector McKendry said there had been a reported problem with one type of detector and it was found that less than one-half of one per cent of the detectors built by a certain company were "potentially defective."

Even those few, he said, were readily detectable because an "on" light would go off when the detector failed.

A well-known consumer advocate has suggested that people should be concerned about radiation from the ion chamber detector but McKendry insists that worry over such a possible problem is unfounded.

"We've had hundreds of them stored" in the office, the inspector said, "and they emit no measurable radiation that we could detect."

"These things are designed to get people out of a fire," he said, "and they do that job."

LUCKY EVERYDAY

and here are a few ways ...

EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

Lucky originated true discount pricing. Every item in the supermarket is an everyday low discount price (except those items controlled by law). We offer top quality and nationally advertised products at true discount prices.

KEY BUY SAVINGS

Key Buys are added savings. You'll find many items throughout the store with a Key Buy Tag. Key Buys are made possible by exceptional purchases or a manufacturer's temporary promotional allowance.

SINGLE ITEM PRICING

Lucky has taken the confusion out of food prices. Each price is a single price, (for example: 4 for 89¢) looks like a better bargain than one item at 22¢, but of course it's not. Simple mathematics in many cases prove you can save with Single Item Pricing.

BONDED MEATS

Every cut of meat you select is backed by the Lucky Bond. It is your guarantee that the meat you have selected is flavorful and tender ... our guarantee of good eating or your money back!

CUSTOMER SHOPPING TESTS

During the last ten years, Lucky has taken hundreds of customer shopping tests ... asking Lucky shoppers to compare, item for item, their total food bill at Lucky and another nearby supermarket. The majority of these tests have verified substantial savings at Lucky!

FRESH PRODUCE

Lucky's reputation for offering finer fresh fruits and vegetables has been long established. Shoppers tell us the daily variety and selection are superb ... and we believe them! And, of course, all produce is always available at low everyday discount prices.

I&RC Help Asked

South San Francisco residents are being asked to donate food to the Information and Referral Center to distribute to families at Thanksgiving.

Barbara Hitchcock, chairwoman of the local Salvation Army service unit, said the center is accepting canned foods, rice, beans and turkey products at the center, 291 Hillside Blvd.

Mrs. Hitchcock said food also may be left at the Grand Avenue Library next to City Hall, the West Orange Avenue Library, and Bronstein Music Co. at 363 Grand Ave.

"Many people and children will be without Thanksgiving dinner if South San Francisco citizens do not help us in this effort to help the unfortunate people of our area," Mrs. Hitchcock said.

All donations, she added, are tax deductible.

Checks may be sent to the Salvation Army Service unit treasurer, Al Fourie, Crocker Bank, South San Francisco.

'Mop-Up' Clinics Planned

Three "mop-up" clinics to provide free swine flu inoculations to persons who missed the recent weekend clinics have been scheduled by the San Mateo County Department of Health and Welfare.

Alan Adams, coordinator of the program, said that the clinics will be held in the north, central and south areas of the county, beginning next week.

The clinic schedule, with hours of operation from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at all locations:

Friday, Nov. 12, Department of Health and Welfare administration building, 225 W. 37th Ave., San Mateo.

Monday, Nov. 15, Veterans Memorial Building, 1455 Madison Ave., Redwood City.

Friday, Nov. 19, District Health Center, 1024 Mission St., South San Francisco.

Adams said that persons 18 years of age and older are eligible to receive the flu shots.

Cheerleaders Are Selected

Recent cheerleading tryouts at Holy Angels School in Colma have produced the following eighth grade girls to represent the school for the coming year:

Denise Brignoli, Karen Fisher, Michelle Daniele, Rosa Flores, Ann Gumina, Joanne McCarthy, Felicia Jimenez and Teresa Stanghellini. The girls were judged by Michelle Lamkin and her crew of cheerleaders from El Camino High School.

Food Value, Taste Appeal

Using Cheese in Cooking

Good morning, good cooks. We are all interested in meals that give the highest return in food value and taste appeal for our money. Dishes featuring cheese certainly fit into this category. Thinking along these lines took me to my old and much used Dairyland Cook Book from Wisconsin, which has given me many a good meal such as this macaroni and cheese dish.

MACARONI WITH CHEESE AND OLIVE SAUCE

2 cups macaroni
4 Tablespoons butter
3 Tablespoons flour
2 1/2 cups milk
2 cups natural American Cheese, grated
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 to 1 cup stuffed olives, sliced
Cook the two cups macaroni. Make the white sauce. In a saucepan over low heat, melt the four tablespoons butter; add the three tablespoons flour; stir until blended. Add the two and one half cups milk gradually, stirring constantly to avoid lumps. Cook, stirring until smooth and thickened. Add the two cups cheese (reserve some for garnishing), one teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper; stir until cheese is melted. Add the half cup stuffed olives.

Nell Norton

Arrange the cooked macaroni on warm serving dish and pour sauce over it. Garnish with cheese. Serve with baked tomatoes arranged around edge of dish. Serves 6.

BAKED TOMATOES

3 medium tomatoes
3 Tablespoons soft bread crumbs
1 Tablespoon butter
1/4 teaspoon onion salt
Dash of seasoned pepper
Wash tomatoes; cut out stem ends. Halve cross-wise. Place six halves, cut sides up, in a baking pan. Place one tablespoon butter in small skillet; add the three tablespoons bread crumbs, fourth teaspoon onion salt and dash pepper. Stir until crumbs are coated with butter. Spoon the buttered crumbs on tops of tomatoes. Bake uncovered in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

Note: In last week's recipe for Spinach Pie, one item was missing from the ingredients: three ounces of cream cheese.

Kidnaper Sought

Daly City police are looking for a youth who kidnapped a woman at the Serramonte Shopping Center at about 2:30 p.m. Thursday and forced her to drive him several blocks.

The youth, simulating a gun in his pocket, ordered Sherline Halane, of San Francisco, to "get me out of here or I'll kill you."

He then forced the woman into her own car and instructed her to drive him toward Colma. Approximately a mile from the center, he jumped out of the car and ran off, police said.

The youth was described as a thin white male, 15 or 16 years old, with brown hair and green eyes, wearing tan levis and a brown striped shirt.

Police cautioned that the boy may be armed with a handgun.

Oyster Point Marina Wins Loan

After 2½ years of negotiating with the City of South San Francisco, the San Mateo County Board of Harbor Commissioners voted Wednesday night to grant the city a $275,000 loan for construction of new launch ramps at Oyster Point Marina.

The vote was 4 - 0, and authorized a loan at 4½ per cent for the improvements. Commissioner D.P. Fuller was listed as absent at the time of the vote because he arrived later.

South San Francisco had hesitated in seeking a similar loan from the state Department of Navigation and Ocean Development (DNOD), which would have been granted at the same interest rate, because state rules would not have allowed the city to charge a fee for launch ramp use.

According to Commission President Charles Boerio Jr., the vote was made with the realization that taxpayers in South San Francisco have been paying taxes to the harbor commission and should receive some services for the money paid in.

Prior to recent months, the major scope of the harbor commission has been to forward the construction of a multi-million dollar marina at Pillar Point.

This move marks the second effort of the district to expand outside the immediate Coastsides area. Several months ago, a similar joint powers agreement was concluded with the City of Foster City, which had sought funds for a study of marina location alternatives in that community.

In other actions, the commissioners:

- Notified the county of the completion of the destruction on the old Rehbein Marina facility within the harbor and the restoration of the beach to its natural state.

- Adopted an ordinance establishing a fee of $1 per day or $20 per month for the storage of boat trailers and trailered boats.

- Ruled that a district employee who owned a party boat would not be in conflict of interest if he applied for a party boat permit.

- Called for tighter scrutiny of employee travel accounts and expenses when traveling on district business.

- Renewed a request to the county Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) calling for representation on that commission for special districts.

- Postponed awarding a contract for construction of a headwalk adjacent to Johnson Pier.

- Authorized the augmentation of payroll services done by an outside consultant to include computation of holidays and vacations rather than have such work done by district personnel.

- Postponed a resolution establishing an employee development program pending additional input from the employees' union.

- Were advised of a public hearing scheduled by the county Board of Supervisors regarding possible dissolution of the district, Nov. 23 at 2:15 p.m.

Bar Bill Spurs Sharp Debate

San Mateo County Harbor Commissioner Capt. D.P. Fuller is often at odds with his commission colleagues, and many votes of the commission end up 4 - 1, with Fuller on the dissenting end.

In fact, many of the decisions thus arrived at follow rancorous discussion among Fuller and his fellows, often with Fuller taking on the lot.

Thus, the rule was followed Wednesday night, when commissioners considered an order to pay district expenses and issue warrants.

Fuller turned in an expense item for $15, with the explanation it had been used to "entertain the press."

The item was ordered pulled off the list by Board President Charles Boerio Jr., who questioned Fuller about it.

It had been a bar bill charged at a local restaurant, where Fuller had met with reporters following a recent commission meeting and ostensibly was the amount of the bar bill.

After sharp words were exchanged between Boerio and Fuller, the latter withdrew the item.

Highway Costs Worry County

By BOB HEMINGWAY

The proposed policy element of the California Transportation Plan which might require San Mateo County to provide $40 million to $70 million to finance three major county highway projects will be opposed by county officials at a public hearing next week.

County Director of Public Works H.S. Cantwell Jr. reported to the Board of Supervisors Tuesday that the policy element prepared by the California Department of Transportation (CalTrans) "could cause severe problems to San Mateo County if implemented."

He noted that the plan assumes a statewide highway system is essentially complete since nearly every area in California can be reached by road.

It further reasons, Cantwell said, that a large part of state highways are primarily of local or regional benefit and therefore state financing of highways should be limited to state benefits associated with a specific project.

This policy, he reported, could mean that San Mateo County might be required to provide up to $70 million to finance the Devil's Slide bypass on Cabrillo Highway, a permanent interchange at Bayshore and Nineteenth Avenue freeways and extension of the San Bruno Freeway into San Francisco International Airport.

Cantwell noted that some of the proposals included for adoption in the plan "appear non-implementable."

For example, he said, it is proposed to levy additional charges to drivers using highways during peak hours, but the report then acknowledges that there is not a practical mechanism to accomplish this.

He noted that the plan would remove all governmental transportation regulations in order to encourage the private sector to pickup transportation programs without government subsidy.

In actuality, Cantwell said, "nearly all of the private sector has left transportation because there is no money in it."

The Transportation Plan is being prepared by CalTrans under provisions of Assembly Bill 69, passed in 1972, which provides for the creation of a California Transportation Plan directed at a coordinated and balanced transportation system for the state.

The public hearing on the policy element is scheduled before the State Transportation Board No. 8 at 9 a.m. in the Oakland board room of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

The plan will be opposed by San Mateo County on the basis that:

- The policies have been developed without the adoption of goals and objectives of the legislature, as required by AB 69.

- The county has not had sufficient opportunity to judge the potential impact of the proposed policies.

- Many of the policies may result in such a significant change in lifestyle that popular approval is questionable.

- The opposition of the county will continue until the three foregoing objections are resolved.

Specs For Post

Persons who apply for the positions of director of community services and director of environmental management for San Mateo County will be given consideration for experience in programs under the two departments, but will not be restricted from applying for the jobs because of lack of such experience.

That was the 3 to 2 decision of the County Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

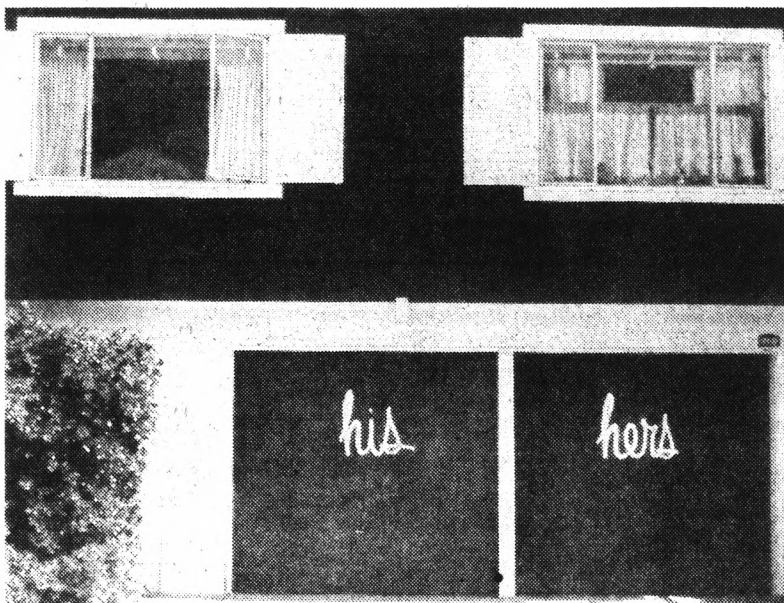

Supervisor John M. Ward, following up on his recommendation of last week, said he believes the job specifications for the two top-management positions are fine, but that "there is no question that practical experience in program management would enhance the effectiveness of any department director."

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald claimed such specification isn't needed, that persons with such experience will be singled out in the interview process.

If the specific experience requirement is included, it could cut down on the number of applicants for the two positions, which were created under the reorganization program to cut the number of county departments from 32 to 19, Fitzgerald claimed.

"We can pull out the applicants who have the experience, we're looking for," he stated. "We're looking for management experience."

Ward concurred that he doesn't want to restrict the number of applications. However, he said, the county can "still make the point" by putting in the job announcement bulletin that experience in program management related or comparable to the department may be "considered an advantage to the applicant, but is not intended to restrict those who don't have such."

(George Brooke Photo)

About 15 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. John Hatt, of 2601 Maywood Drive, San Bruno, had a sign painter decorate their adjoining garages as shown, and the house became a neighborhood landmark. Several years ago, says Mrs. Hatt, they were painting the house and had temporarily removed the signs. A neighbor asked her to please replace them "so I can give directions how to get to our house." Mrs. Hatt made no mention of the windows above the doors, but the decorative curtains and ornaments seem to indicate a woman's touch.

Pier Measure Dumped

Pacifica voters beached Prop. F Tuesday, a 7½ cent tax override that would have allowed for maintenance of San Pedro Beach and the city's fishing pier.

The defeat apparently will cancel a three-way agreement among the federal, state and county governments to buy up the beach for public access. The beach purchase was contingent upon Pacifica providing for maintenance of the beach property.

The final tally this morning was 3,915 yes, 6,884 no.

It's the second time Pacifica voters have said they don't want to be levied that additional tax on the city rate that's already one of the highest in the county.
